Undergraduate Diploma in Creative Writing – OPTION 2

About the course

Our two-year, part-time Diploma allows you to strengthen your ability in four major areas of literary activity — prose, poetry, drama and analytical reading — as well as the chance to specialise in the medium of your choice.

This course offers a rich combination of seminars, tutorials and group discussions, using a variety of media to offer a stimulating and challenging learning environment. The chance to have your work read and analysed by a supportive, suitably skilled peer group is one of the great benefits of the course, offering fresh perspectives and insights on your writing. At the same time, we emphasise the importance of individual voice and vision, and there will be time for one-to-one, in-depth discussion of your work.

On the online study option, nearly all of the work you do will be through online media and resources. Each of the first five terms is comprised of ten weekly units focusing on individual aspects of the writer's craft. Term 6 has five units instead of ten, mirroring the face-to-face option. Each weekly unit is expected to have:

- experiments and exercises in reading, critiquing and practical writing activities as well as lively group discussions in focussed study forums wherein your tutor is an active participant;
- group discussions in forums centred on each other's work. This is because the value of group activity as a catalyst for the creative imagination is a central tenet of the course.

There is a two-week in-person summer school at the end of the first year of study, which provides an opportunity to concentrate on living and working your craft. This is an integral part of the course and is expected to be held in Oxford. Please note that accommodation is not included in the course fee.

The summer school is a vibrant culmination to your first year, allowing dedicated time and space for your writing. Sessions for the whole group are balanced by individual sessions which allow you to focus on areas of your choice. There is time set aside for uninterrupted writing, and guidance will be given, as a group and individually, about how best to focus your efforts during the summer vacation so that you can get the most out of your second year. Nearly every day begins with a plenary lecture by a visiting speaker — most often these are professional writers in various media, but also other industry professionals such as agents, publishers and producers too. There expected to be four face-to-face classes with your tutors each week. The programme usually includes a range of optional activities, such as visits to theatre or similar events, tours of 'literary/historical' sites and so on (where possible depending on the Coronavirus pandemic).

The stimulation of group discussion is augmented by regular contact between tutors and students. These tutorials, combined with a restriction of student numbers in each year, ensure each student has the opportunity to discover his or her own particular talents.

Whilst the summer school is usually held in-person, it may be moved online, rescheduled or revised if necessary e.g. as a result of the Coronavirus pandemic.

The first term provides an introduction to the three main genres: prose, poetry and drama. From the outset there are opportunities to engage in practical activity and wide-ranging group discussion of aims, techniques and issues.

The second term makes a start on refining and developing analytical skills with Reading for Writers, followed by close attention to the structures and approaches of Prose Fiction. The third term concentrates on how to address the challenges of writing Poetry and Stage Drama.

Summer school

The in-person summer school is a vibrant culmination to your first year, allowing dedicated time and space for your writing. It provides an opportunity to concentrate as fully as possible on living and working your craft.

YEAR 2

The aim of the year is to consolidate and broaden the developments in skill, confidence and analytical ability that will have accrued in Year 1. Term 4 provides in-depth concentration on short and long fiction, while term 5 focuses on advanced Reading for Writers and further high-level consideration of the craft of poetry. Term 6 gives students up-to-the-minute experience of how to write Broadcast Drama.

Tutorials

Tutorials offer opportunity for focused, developmental discussion of work in process. Their nature ensures full concentration on the strengths of each student's work as well as on areas which may need improvement. Tutorials centre on work produced in relation to the genres studied during that term. This means that as early as term 1, students have considerable freedom of choice to write on prose, poetry or drama (though you should expect to write on more than one category in that term). Students are usually offered two tutorials per term.

For those pursuing Option 2 (online) all tutorials are online except for those at the summer school.

Space for specialisation

At the end of both years you will be given the opportunity to concentrate more extensively on your own preferred area of interest, through the production of a portfolio of around 6,000 words in the case of prose and drama, or around 200 lines of poetry. Your second-year portfolio is expected to be allocated four term weeks for concentrated attention, usually guided by a preliminary tutorial discussion of the content you are proposing, and a review tutorial on completion of the project.

Assessment

Assessment for the award is through coursework assignments and portfolios of written work. Candidates are required to pass separately in each year of the course. To pass a year a candidate must submit the number of assessments required and obtain a pass on average in the assignments for the year and separately in the portfolio.

Candidates are set the following coursework:

Year One

Six assignments of which they are required to submit five, and a portfolio

Year Two

Five assignments of which they are required to submit four and a portfolio

The coursework assignments are each expected to be about 2,000 words of prose, 15 pages of drama, or about 100 lines of poetry.

Each portfolio is expected to be about three times the length of the coursework assignments.

Candidates select their own choice of genre for the portfolio.

Attendance

Candidates are expected to attend a minimum of 75% of the online sessions, and the summer school.

Additional cost information

This course has a two-week summer school in Oxford and you will need to meet any costs (e.g. travel accommodation, subsistence) you may incur in attending.

You will need a computer which meets our minimum specification, with access to the internet and various other software programmes. Please see the system requirements webpage for full details.

Living costs

In addition to your fees, you will need to ensure that you have adequate funds to support your living costs for the duration of your course.

For the 2022-23 academic year, the range of likely living costs for full-time study is between c. £1,215 and £1,755 for each month spent in Oxford. Full information, including a breakdown of likely living costs in Oxford for items such as food, accommodation and study costs, is available on our living costs page. When planning your finances for any future years of study in Oxford beyond 2022-23, you should allow for an estimated increase in living expenses of 3% each year.

The living costs above are based on single, full-time students living in Oxford. While it may be the case that, as a part-time student, you will not be based in Oxford during your studies, you will still need to cover your cost of living on a full-time basis. If this applies to you, you should calculate your living costs to be sure that you have sufficient funding to meet these costs for the duration of your course. In particular, part-time students who are not based in Oxford will need to calculate travel and accommodation costs carefully. Please note that living costs outside Oxford may be different from those shown above.
