

Course Information Sheet for entry in 2024-25: MSt in English (1900-Present)

Course facts

Mode of study	Full Time Only
Expected length	9 months

About the course

The English master's programmes are designed to serve both as an autonomous degree for students wishing to pursue more advanced studies in English literature, and as a solid foundation for doctoral research.

The English Faculty includes numerous scholars and teachers working in the modern period. Within the modern period, particular areas of interest among faculty members include modernist poetry, fiction, and drama, the cultural contexts of literature, literature and science, life writing, modern drama and performance studies, contemporary poetry, post-colonial studies and Irish literature.

The Bodleian Library, the English Faculty Library, the Taylorian, the History Library and the Rothermere American Institute Library provide a great wealth of resources for the study of modern literature at Oxford. Students are welcome to attend lectures across related disciplines. The faculty has a number of visiting lecturers and writers every year.

Course structure

The MSt programme consists of four main components as outlined below.

A. Core course: Literature, Contexts and Approaches

The 'A' course on 'Literature, Context and Approaches' will explore significant texts, themes, and critical approaches in our period, in order to open up a wide, though by no means exclusive, sense of some possibilities for dissertation research. The exact topics covered change from year to year according to the course convenors' expertise and analysis of what will be valuable. Topics in recent years have included 'Models of Modernity', 'Interdisciplinarity', 'Theories of the Avant-Garde', 'Formalism and Historicism', 'The Transnational Turn', 'Multimediality, Intermediality, and Remediation', 'Limits of the Human', and 'Late Styles'.

There will be five classes across five weeks, followed by two weeks in which students present on their ideas for their dissertations.

B. Core course: Bibliography, Theories of Text, History of the Book, Manuscript Studies

This is a range of lectures and seminars in each of the first two terms designed to train students for research in English. Within this strand, there will be classes on book history and theories of text, appropriate to the period.

C. Special options

Special option courses are one-term courses on specialist themes usually relating to the current research interests of the teacher(s).

Recent 'C' options for this strand - some of which cross period boundaries - have included: 'British Literature and Culture at Mid-Century: 1940-70', '20th and 21st Century Theatre', 'Modernism and Philosophy', 'The New T. S. Eliot Studies', 'Literature and Science, 1890-present', 'Sea-Voyages, Literature, Modernity', 'Contemporary Poetry by the Book', 'Aesthetic Education: Goethe to Coetzee', 'Modernism and the Ideal Society', 'Citizens of Nowhere: Literary Cosmopolitanism at the Turn of the Twentieth Century', 'Henry James and His Legacies', 'Senses of humour: Wordsworth to Ashbery', 'Literatures of Empire and Nation'.

Students take one special option in each of the first two terms.

The special option courses present an excellent opportunity for you to develop your research interests. You are not constrained to follow option courses within your designated period, and indeed, option courses often traverse the boundaries of the broad periods.

D. Dissertation

All students write a dissertation on a subject of their choice, but related to the work they have been doing over the year. You will be assigned to a member of the faculty who will act as your supervisor.

Supervision

The allocation of graduate supervision for this course is the responsibility of the Faculty of English and it is not always possible to accommodate the preferences of incoming graduate students to work with a particular member of staff. Under exceptional circumstances a supervisor may be found outside the Faculty of English.

Assessment

In addition to the dissertation, you will submit three essays – one at the end of the first term, and two at the end of the second term – relating to the 'B' and 'C' courses that you have taken.

Students normally take all four components to fulfil the requirements of the degree. All course work will be completed by the end of the second term (Hilary term), leaving the summer term (Trinity term) for the writing of the dissertation, which is submitted in early June.

Changes to this course

The University will seek to deliver this course in accordance with the description set out above. However, there may be situations in which it is desirable or necessary for the University to make changes in course provision, either before or after you commence your course. These might include significant changes made necessary by any pandemic, epidemic or local health emergency. For further information, please see the University's Terms and Conditions (<http://www.graduate.ox.ac.uk/terms>) and our page on changes to courses (<http://www.graduate.ox.ac.uk/coursechanges>).

Costs

Annual fees for entry in 2024-25

Fee status	Annual Course fees
Home	£15,840
Overseas	£33,970

Information about course fees

Course fees are payable each year, for the duration of your fee liability (your fee liability is the length of time for which you are required to pay course fees). For courses lasting longer than one year, please be aware that fees will usually increase annually. Information about how much fees and other costs may increase is set out in the University's Terms and Conditions (<http://www.graduate.ox.ac.uk/terms>).

Course fees cover your teaching as well as other academic services and facilities provided to support your studies. Unless specified in the additional cost information (below), course fees do not cover your accommodation, residential costs or other living costs. They also don't cover any additional costs and charges that are outlined in the additional cost information.

Additional cost information

There are no compulsory elements of this course that entail additional costs beyond fees and living costs. However, as part of your course requirements, you may need to choose a dissertation, a project or a thesis topic. Please note that, depending on your choice of topic and the research required to complete it, you may incur additional expenses, such as travel expenses, research expenses, and field trips. You will need to meet these additional costs, although you may be able to apply for small grants from your department and/or college to help you cover some of these expenses.

Living costs

In addition to your course fees, you will need to ensure that you have adequate funds to support your living costs for the duration of your course.

The likely living costs for 2024-25 are published below. These costs are based on a single, full-time graduate student, with no dependants, living in Oxford. We provide the cost per month so you can multiply up by the number of months you expect to live in Oxford.
