

Course Information Sheet for entry in 2018-18

Undergraduate Certificate in Archaeology

About the course

This two-year part time course is equivalent to the first year of an undergraduate degree. It will outline the development of archaeology as a discipline and introduce how archaeologists find out about past people and their societies. The practice and theory of archaeology will be explored using evidence from Britain and other parts of the world.

The first year considers the development of the modern discipline and covers the fundamentals of archaeological theory and practice. Workshops will investigate artefacts and environmental evidence; fieldwork sessions will introduce essential practical skills in survey and excavation and field trips will investigate sites and landscapes. Classroom sessions provide the foundation for practical workshops studying archaeological evidence and fieldwork elements teaching essential survey and excavation skills.

The second year studies key themes and turning points in archaeology from prehistory to the medieval period, and deals with practical and scientific topics in more detail. Saturday field trips, fieldwork and workshops are woven through both years, while each year also focuses broadly on Prehistory in the first term, later Prehistory and the Roman period in the second term, and post-Roman and Medieval archaeology in the third term.

Each year has three terms, each of these with evening classes and Saturday field trips, fieldwork and workshops. At the end of the first year there is a one-week programme of practical fieldwork.

Year 1: Introduction to Archaeology: Practice and Purpose

Themes covered include:

- What is archaeology?
- Archaeological evidence
- Archaeological theory
- Landscape Archaeology
- Archaeology in towns
- Survey and excavation: theory and practice
- Workshops on artefacts and environmental evidence
- Dating in Archaeology
- Key sites in the development of archaeology

Year 2: Key Themes in Archaeology

Year Two covers the key themes and turning points in archaeological eras from prehistory to the medieval period, and deals with certain topics introduced in Year One in more detail: for example science in archaeology and excavation report writing. Practical workshops studying archaeological evidence and fieldwork elements continue building on the foundation laid in Year One.

Themes covered include:

- Landscapes of prehistoric monumentality
- Rural and urban Roman landscapes
- Post-Roman and Medieval agricultural and religious landscapes

Assessment

- Nine assignments each of not more than 2,000 words;
- One field training programme learning journal of not more than 2,000 words covering work undertaken during the field training programme;
- One two-hour written examination, covering the subjects taught in the first year of the course;
- One extended assignment of not more than 5,000 words

Attendance

- Attendance at class-based sessions and practical sessions, and field training programmes (or equivalent).

The written assignments, fieldwork week report and practical assignments count for 60% of the final assessment, and the written examination and extended project each count for 20%. Each module contributes equally to the final overall mark.

Changes to courses

The University will seek to deliver each course in accordance with the descriptions set out above. However, there may be situations in which it is desirable or necessary for the University to make changes in course provision, either before or after registration. For further information, please see the University's Terms and Conditions.

Annual fees for entry in 2017-18

Fee Status	Tuition fee	College Fee	Total annual fees
Home/EU(including islands)	£2,305	N/A	£2,305
Overseas	£4,335	N/A	£4,335

The fees shown above are the annual tuition fees for this course for entry in the 2016- 17 academic year; for courses lasting longer than one year, please be aware that fees will usually increase annually. For details, please see our guidance on likely increases to fees and charges. College fees are not generally payable for non-matriculated courses although a small number of courses may permit college affiliation for which a charge will be made.

Tuition fees are payable each year for the duration of your fee liability (your fee liability is the length of time for which you are required to pay tuition fees).

Additional cost information

Students are not required to buy books, but there may be a few recommended key texts which you may choose to buy. Transport for field trips and the practical fieldwork is normally arranged on a car sharing basis by the students themselves except where a hired minibus is used. In some cases, entry fees to museums or sites are paid individually by the students.

Living costs

In addition to your fees, you will need to ensure that you have adequate funds to support your living costs for the duration of your course.

The likely living costs for 2017-18 are published below. These costs are based on a single, full-time graduate student, with no dependants, living in Oxford. We provide the cost per month so you can multiply up by the number of months you expect to live in Oxford.

	Likely living costs for 1 month		Likely living costs for 9 months		Likely living costs for 12 months
	Lower range	Upper range	Lower range	Upper range	Lower range	Upper range
Food	£250	£350	£2,250	£3,150	£3,000	£4,000
Accommodation	£538	£619	£4,844	£5,569	£6,459	£7,425
Personal items	£115	£255	£1,035	£2,295	£1,380	£3,060
Social activities	£40	£119	£358	£1,073	£477	£1,431
Study costs	£38	£83	£338	£743	£451	£991
Other	£22	£45	£196	£407	£261	£543
TOTAL	£1,002	£1,471	£9,021	£13,237	£12,028	£17,649

When planning your finances for any future years of study in Oxford beyond 2017-18, you should allow for an estimated increase in living expenses of 2% each year.
